Synopsis

Is your project wall finishes still with the generic “Plaster and paint” design specification?

In 2017, we have understood Malaysia’s construction trend and how evolution of dry-mix products can be an effective building materials to meet today’s building stringent requirement, particularly in preventing the greatest nightmares for all, such as wall cracks, hollowness, powdery surface, paint peel off, and efflorescence.

This year, we shall focus to introduce the primary concept to help architects design and realizing this perfect wall into practical field. The audience is expecting to have a deeper understanding in each designed material behavior, its physical touch and feel, including but not limited to plastering, rendering and skim coating. Missed out the previous session? Don’t worry, a short recap would as well be covered, including the common best practices for perfect wall construction.
